

WASHINGTON SOCIETY WOMEN MAY DRINK AFTERNOON TEA IN STOCKINGLESS FEET

Left to Right: Mrs. Nelle Fabyan, Charles Page Bryan, Ambassador Sato, Consul Karusu (Chicago) and Mrs. John Barton Payne.

Washington, Oct. 19.—"Take off your shoes and have some tea" may be society's salutation to afternoon callers if the ways of the new Japanese ambassador, Airo Sato, gain vogue in Washington.

Ambassador Sato is one of the most modern in dress, progressive in thought, of the foreign diplomats at the capital — yet, he kicks off his shoes and curls up on a cushion when he takes afternoon tea.

This is according to tradition honored in the imperial palace in Tokyo and throughout Japan.

When Ambassador Sato was entertained at the country home of Col. and Mrs. George Fabyan in Chicago he removed his shoes and socks when invited to tea. His hostess and Mrs. John Barton Payne, who has lived many years in Japan, followed his example.

—O—O— "I WAS SOLD INTO MARRIAGE"

He was sold into marriage for $250 when only 16 years old was claim of Louis Weisbaum in his suit for divorce from Mrs. Rose Weisbaum, 1217 S. Peoria st. yesterday. He also said he was framed on by his brother, former Det. Serg't Michael Weisbaum, and sent to the penitentiary for two years. Michael also went to prison in the same case.

—O—O— HUNT TRAIN BANDITS.

Bliss, Okla., Oct. 19. — A posse is scouring country north of here for six bandits who last night held up Santa Fe road's Texas express, killed Express Messenger Percy A. Norman, dynamited safe and escaped with an unknown amount of money.
